About

Sobre

Born in São Paulo, raised in Marbella, and now based in Houston, Roxé is a singer and songwriter whose music reflects a life shaped by different cultures, languages, and musical traditions.

Fluent in Portuguese, Spanish, and English, Roxé brings an international perspective to contemporary pop. Her influences move across pop, classical music, indie, flamenco, soul, and other global sounds, giving her the freedom to create music that does not sit neatly inside one category.

At the center of Roxé's music is her voice. A soprano with an expansive vocal range, she draws inspiration from artists including Sarah Brightman, Adele, Loreen, Sade, Yebba, Roxette, and Rosalía, vocalists known for emotional and distinctive performances.

Her songs explore emotion, personal growth, strength, and the moments that change us. Roxé writes to leave listeners feeling something, whether that feeling is reflection, escape, empowerment, or release.

Her 2026 single "This Moment" introduced a more intimate and intentional side of her artistry. Built around a dramatic vocal performance and a pop sound influenced by classical and cinematic elements, the song became part of Roxé's pursuit of a longtime ambition when she auditioned to represent San Marino at Eurovision 2026.

With roots across Brazil, Spain, Europe, and Houston, Roxé is developing an artistic identity that feels international by nature rather than design.
